Reflections

Tuesday, June 30, 2020

Bear sighting

Anne and I were having dinner on the porch when I looked over at our deck and saw our grill had been pushed across the length of the deck—about six feet from its original location. We went out to inspect it and found foot long claw scratches on the top of vinyl cover. On the side, there were punctures big enough to put your finger through.

So we called the “bear patrol.” Yes there is one. They recommended we put our grill in the garage. Duh.

Here’s a picture from Carol Monroe…giving us “bearly” a hard time.

Request for Porter Picture

Gigi (mom) says Porter was leery of the new nurse. This is one expressive face! 3 lbs, 2 oz. 6.29.20 One week-old birthday.

Reopening Guidelines from Harvard
I thought you might find this interesting. It's a thoughtful piece on how Harvard's professional theater is approaching the topic of reopening.
https://americanrepertorytheater.org/roadmap-for-recovery-and-resilience-for-theater/table-of-contents/introduction/

Other news of note
The closing of our home in MN was delayed because COVID-19 caused delays in the FedEX planes from Europe. The buyers of our home arrived from Switzerland over the weekend. They were just in time to sign the paperwork on Monday. It's finally done. Yahoo!

See you Wednesday,
Scott